HOY Welcome– Mr Southby

Welcome back to the fifth edition of our school Newsletter.

Hello Year 7, Well, it has been another two weeks since our last Newsletter and I have received some great work for you– remember, you can be featured in our next edition if you send me pictures of your achievements. The Rewards vouchers have arrived this week and will be winging their way to students that have made continual progress and maintaining the outstanding effort to produce quality work. Your form tutors, Mrs Rogers, Mrs Amphlett and I have chosen students to receive these rewards so look out for the post!

Next week, I am running a HOY assembly for you all. As you can imagine having 180 students on one zoom call would be very chaotic, so I have decided to run them in groups. You will receive an email from your form tutor telling you what time and date you need to be ready for your assembly. Don't worry about wearing your uniform, but please make sure that you are dressed (no pyjamas).

Whilst students continue to work from home, it is important to remember that our whole-school values remain unchanged. I am sure all of us have been both shocked and upset by the murder of George Floyd in the United States. At a challenging time, when we are not physically together as a school community, it is more important than ever to remain united and continue to reinforce and uphold our values of commitment, pride and success towards one another. To do this please join us in this newsletter's challenge by creating a poster for anti-racism or visit <http://archive.teachfind.com/ttv/www.teachers.tv/videos/show-racism-the-red-card.html> to hear Premier League footballers talk about their experiences of racism and outline what racism is and what effects it can have.

I am really looking forward to seeing you at our assembly, where I will be bringing you up to date with the Google Classrooms- our new online learning platform.

Take care, stay safe...Mr Southby

This week's Challenge is all about promoting Anti-racism and anti-discrimination around our school by making a poster and/or writing a poem or short story that celebrates diversity.

♥ Why 'All You Need is Love'. ♥

Learning to appreciate yourself is an important tool in helping to boost your self-esteem. Low self-esteem can seriously impact an individual's mental health, which is why focusing on self-care and taking positive steps towards self-love can improve your wellbeing.

How positive change could improve your mental health

Three young people share their stories of how being brave enough to change an aspect of their life, or try something new, positively impacted their mental health. Check out their stories for inspiration and why not give it a go yourself and tell us your story <https://www.themix.org.uk/mental-health/how-positive-change-could-improve-your-mental-health-30207.html>

Talking about self-harm

We are in uncertain times. But no matter what's going on outside, your mental health shouldn't take a back seat. The impact of lockdown and the anxiety it causes may well make self-harm harder to control. If you are self-harming, talking to someone is a crucial step towards recovery.

Here's how to talk to someone about self-harming
